It's been a few years, but in the past Icom has kept at their web site tech sheets that describe problems and solutions for much of their older equipment.

Try:
http://www.icomamerica.com/en/support/kb/Default.aspx

I see a number of references to various audio problems for the R71.

 If it's just a low audio thing you have, it's possibly an easy fix for you or a decent technician.

Thanks, I have seen all the information on the Icom site and I have also contacted Kiwa as well on this issue. Kiwa thinks it could be bad caps but money is tight at this time do to me being out of work for two years.

The other day I attempted to change the ram battery and made a big mistake due to the fact I did not put my glasses on. I ended up hooking up the negative wire to the wrong solder point next to the one I was supposed to hook up to and damaged the ram board. I really felt like a real bone head and kick myself in the but for not double checking things.

I have a new board coming from one of the aftermarket companies to at least get the radio back to where it was before the bonehead move. If all is good I will then try to work on the original problem....

After a 30-day public discussion and feedback period to gauge reader opinions in March of 2009:

http://groups.google.com/group/rec.radio.amateur.moderated/browse_thread/thread/d7d337db35f23326

the rec.radio.amateur.moderated Moderation Team has decided to consider amending its charter, and permit limited simultaneous crossposting to rec.radio.amateur.moderated and one other unmoderated amateur-radio-related discussion newsgroup. We are currently trying this on a temporary basis (90 days, through early July 2009), and adopt it permanently if successful.

Approved rec.radio.amateur.* newsgroups are those that are currently listed in the latest version of the "List of Big Eight Newsgroups" which is crossposted monthly to news.announce.newgroups, news.groups, and news.lists.misc.

Approved alt.radio.amateur.* and alt.ham-radio.* newsgroups are those that have been created consistent with the suggestions in "So You Want to Create an Alt Newsgroup" at:

http://www.faqs.org/faqs/alt-creation-guide/

Approved regional hierarchy newsgroups are those that contain either "radio.amateur" or "ham-radio" in their names, including uk.radio.amateur and aus.radio.amateur.misc.

We will make every reasonable effort to keep our list of approved newsgroups up-to-date. In case we have overlooked any, and a submission is rejected in error as a result, the rejected submitter can E-mail us at our administrative contact address (in the signature at the bottom of this article, and the default Reply-To for the rejection message) requesting that it be added, and that the article be approved. We may still choose to reject articles crossposted to any alt.* newsgroup with an inappropriate name, including obscene language, embedded name-calling, or encouragement of unlawful conduct.

Please direct any comments, questions, or criticisms to rec-radio-amateur-moderated-request@panix.com.

One significant omission, requiring immediate updates, for this article      |
is that it does not mention newer amateur radio newsgroups created since     |
it was written, including:                                                   |

I'm not familiar with the receiver you are talking about but many of the recent models of radio-ham gear today have on-board computers for frequency and other control. That includes backup data/clock batteries which hold more programmable information than most people are aware of. I learned the hard way that this can get screwed up even if you do nothing. I've had two pieces of gear that have changed certain behavior since a prior time of use. Before you consider drastic action, look for a "reset" button or a "reset hole" (big enough to push in a paper clip bent to allow one end of the paper clip wire to be pushed into that hole. It might be in back or under the rig. Even some laptop computers have this. Check your manual or download a fresh copy if available off a website. Most of the manuals I have for my gear have --way at the end--a page on "setting to factory default" which is what you want.

Sometimes the "reset to factory default" involves a very specific "turn on" instruction (instead of a paper clip insert to push a switch). For example, it may say to hold down a certain button then push the "power-on button" to do a reset.

I had a 2 meter FM transceiver that did not do certain things and I ended up selling it to a friend after explaining the problem, and then he told me some weeks later about the "reset" trick, and he got everything to work just fine.

Also, I have a Grundig G5 SWL receiver (all digital) and it has the reset hole on the front panel. So far I've had to do a reset about three times. And, interestingly, the problem is like yours; when I turn on the receiver, the audio volume is very low. After I do the reset, it behaves normally. Of course, this might blow all of your memory data, too, but I don't use them.

One rig I have even has levels of reset that you can opt for.

Good luck.

Hello,

I was wondering if anyone could help me dig up a bit of information on a Motorola MTX838 Model B3 portable radio. Despite having the operations manual for this radio I can't seem to decipher the technology of the radio.

Is this a 800mhz or 900mhz type radio? I see that on the front of the manual it does state "Privacy Plus" and within the pages makes mention of trunking technology, is it safe to say that this radio is capable of trunking?

Any insight would be appreciated on this.

Thanks.

The climbers you know probably climb 100 ft towers?

With this tower that would require 3,400 ft of rope, which probably weighs more than the tools and will be very difficult to handle.

The climbers you know probably climb 100 ft towers?

With this tower that would require 3,400 ft of rope, which probably weighs more than the tools and will be very difficult to handle.

Not to mention the extreme likelihood of the rope getting blown around and/or snagged on any of dozens of appendages (microwave antennas, FM and comms antennas, tower lighting, etc) that are on such tall structures.

You take a messenger rope (3/32") up with you. Once through the pulley and back down that rope is used to lift a more substantial rope, all done by the winch on the service truck. This is a safety feature. People cramp up sometimes.

You usually have a ground crew person feeding the line and watching such things. California has stricter laws than OSHA. I think you have to clip on when climbing here.

9mm static line weighs 57 gm/meter. A 1000 meter loop would weight 57kg or 126 lbs. No thanks. Also, the line has quite a bit of wind resistance and will probably cause the 30 lb tool bag to sway quite a bit in the wind. However, since he rode the elevator almost to the top, he might be able to handle a 50 meter single static line to the top of the elevator.

Nice video. I wonder what they were repairing on top of the tower? Replacing the tower light?

Press Release

Tower Association Responds to Erroneous and Dangerous Video

The following statement is being issued by the National Association of Tower Erectors (NATE) regarding a dangerous video post erroneously characterizing �free climbing� on towers as lawful and common.
NATE would like to publicly denounce the message of the recently posted video depicting two men climbing a broadcast tower. NATE asserts that the posting of the content was misguided and its messages should not be given credence by any viewer.
The �Stairway to Heaven� video, reportedly launched by TheOnLineEngineer.org, suggests that free climbing is an accepted method of ascending and descending broadcast and telecommunication towers. The video incorrectly asserts that free climbing is accepted by OSHA and that �most tower workers climb this way.� The video also depicts as standard procedure other dangerous and prohibited conduct not condoned by NATE or OSHA. There are many inaccuracies in this video.
NATE�s efforts to establish a culture of safety in the wireless and broadcast tower industry encourages everyone involved with tower work to adhere to recognized safe practices. The video in question is an example of a climber who is either unaware of recognized safety practices or is unwilling to take the time to protect his life and the life of his co-worker in the video. By extension it encourages others to employ unsafe climbing techniques not endorsed by either OSHA or NATE. Contractors who refuse to operate safely should never be hired. This video is one more example of why the efforts of NATE, our membership and industry partners are imperative.

NATE, the industry�s leader in tower safety, continues to pursue working relationships with carriers, broadcasters and other tower owner/operators to ensure that only qualified contractors set foot on tower sites. The Association has worked with OSHA to develop safety best practices and educational programs to ensure every tower worker goes home safely every day. Companies which allow free climbing and other violations of recognized safety practices are placing lives in danger and jeopardizing tower work services.

NATE is looking forward to OSHA�s statement clarifying this matter for the industry.

Work Quality in Question

Employers who allow such practices will likely cut corners on other aspects of their work. NATE asks, �If a company or employee will cut corners with the lives of its workers, on what other aspects of work will they be willing to cut corners?� Owners and operators who hire this type of contractor are opening themselves up to legal and regulatory actions and are additionally running the risk of system malfunctions, adding unnecessary costs on top of endangering lives.

NATE Requests Contact From Tower Owners and Operators

NATE is requesting contact from carriers, broadcasters and other entities who own, operate or control wireless and broadcast towers as well as the industry groups who represent them. NATE is doggedly pursuing working relationships with these organizations to ensure that a culture of safety exists throughout the industry and that only qualified contractors set foot on tower sites. If your organization fits this description, please contact Patrick Howey at 888-882-5865 or patrick@natehome.com.

Wow, has the price of tubes gone way up?  You can buy a new solid state ricebox with all bands up to 440 (sadly minus 222) for just a bit more...I better dust off my old Kenwood 520S.  I tried to sell it for $300 a couple years ago (at a hamfest where people could even see it!)
and not even a bite....or even a lowball offer :(

It only has three tubes... a 12BY7 and two 6JS6C's.

For some reason the Yaesu FT-101 rigs got a large cult following with the "freeband" illegal CB crowd - probably because they had an 11 meter position on the bandswitch (receive only) and it only took a trivial effort to get it to transmit there. They also had AM. In fact, I believe there were more of these rigs sold to CB'ers than to hams.

I can remember one fellow who brought his Yaesu into the shop where I worked during graduate school. He put in new tubes but did not know how to neutralize the finals. I told him that the only way I would work on it was if I restored the radio to its original condition. He agreed, saying that even _he_ could modify it back the way it was. I learned that one nearby CB'er even had a Collins S-line transmitter and receiver on 11 meters!

A-ha!  I have a plain FT-101 that was given to me years ago.  I'll have to check and see if it has the same 11M selection.  Maybe I'm sitting on enough cash to buy another transverter or two for the microwave bands :)

Changes followed by "|".

After a 30-day public discussion and feedback period to gauge reader opinions in March of 2009:

http://groups.google.com/group/rec.radio.amateur.moderated/browse_thread/thread/d7d337db35f23326

the rec.radio.amateur.moderated Moderation Team has decided to consider amending its charter, and permit limited simultaneous crossposting to rec.radio.amateur.moderated and one other unmoderated amateur-radio-related discussion newsgroup. We are currently trying this on a temporary basis (90 days, through early July 2009), and adopt it permanently if successful.

Approved rec.radio.amateur.* newsgroups are those that are currently listed in the latest version of the "List of Big Eight Newsgroups" which is crossposted monthly to news.announce.newgroups, news.groups, and news.lists.misc.

Approved alt.radio.amateur.* and alt.ham-radio.* newsgroups are those that have been created consistent with the suggestions in "So You Want to Create an Alt Newsgroup" at:

  http://www.faqs.org/faqs/alt-creation-guide/

Approved regional hierarchy newsgroups are those that contain either "radio.amateur" or "ham-radio" in their names, including uk.radio.amateur and aus.radio.amateur.misc.

We will make every reasonable effort to keep our list of approved newsgroups up-to-date. In case we have overlooked any, and a submission is rejected in error as a result, the rejected submitter can E-mail us at our administrative contact address (in the signature at the bottom of this article, and the default Reply-To for the rejection message) requesting that it be added, and that the article be approved. We may still choose to reject articles crossposted to any alt.* newsgroup with an inappropriate name, including obscene language, embedded name-calling, or encouragement of unlawful conduct.

Please direct any comments, questions, or criticisms to rec-radio-amateur-moderated-request@panix.com.

I was wondering if anyone has heard of a delivery date for the Wouxun KG-UV920R mobile transmitter.
The specs look impressive and by the look of the digital readout, appears to have a broadband receiver built in!
Cheers

I was looking in going into amature radio broadcasting, I plan to order my mic, mixer and all other cables. I was just wondering how to go about recording my show? The laptop soundcard is not the greatest and I would like to know if there is any cheap hardware �100 or lower to record for a while into mp3 format?

Oh and sorry one more thing, im not sure on the mic I have ordered, I dont want to link it because I dont know what rules I am breaking, but what would be the best mic for me? I just want a mic for recording me and it would be a bonus if it diddnt pick up noises other than my voice

My budget is �150 for that

Thanks in advance
Ben

But "amateur radio news bulletins" are legal in the USA.

§97.111 Authorized transmissions.-

(b) In addition to one-way transmissions specifically authorized elsewhere in this Part, an amateur station may transmit the following types of one-way communications:

(6) Transmissions necessary to disseminate information bulletins;

And here is what they say about broadcasting in general...

§97.113 Prohibited transmissions. -

(a) No amateur station shall transmit:

(2) Communications for hire or for material compensation, direct or indirect, paid or promised, except as otherwise provided in these rules;

(3) Communications in which the station licensee or control operator has a pecuniary interest, including communications on behalf of an employer, with the following exceptions:

(4) Music using a phone emission except as specifically provided elsewhere in this section; communications intended to facilitate a criminal act; messages encoded for the purpose of obscuring their meaning, except as otherwise provided herein; obscene or indecent words or language; or false or deceptive messages, signals or identification;

(5) Communications, on a regular basis, which could reasonably be furnished alternatively through other radio services.

(b) An amateur station shall not engage in any form of broadcasting, nor may an amateur station transmit one-way communications except as specifically provided in these rules; nor shall an amateur station engage in any activity related to program production or news gathering for broadcasting purposes, except that communications directly related to the immediate safety of human life or the protection of property may be provided by amateur stations to broadcasters for dissemination to the public where no other means of communication is reasonably available before or at the time of the event.

There are some hams who wished to be radio announcers in real life, and there are radio announcers who only use digital modes.

I can get the ham radio news on podcast, seems silly to transmit it on 5 repeaters at a time once a week.

I didn't assume that he was in the US, in fact, since he used a UK pound figure, I assumed he wasn't.  In any case, he should read up on his country's amateur rules in regards to broadcasting.

But that's not what the original poster is asking about.

He's talking about "radio broadcasting" but "amateur" as in a hobby not being paid.

He's not talking about "amateur radio", he likely doesn't even know about it. He wants to play radio DJ, and he's either going to bootleg or stay within the miniscule power levels allowed for "unlicensed" use.

Since he's not talking professional, he stumbled on this newsgroup because he saw the "radio" angle. Indeed, he may have latched on the notion of "amateur radio" to describe what he wants to do by finding this newsgroup.
Unaware that amateur radio is a hobby of two way communication dating back to nearly the origins of radio, he thinks he's in the right place.

I am big on the net. I would like to share tech. with locals in my area. broadcasting seems to be a very simple way of relaying information across said county. Ill need to patch in an AUX audio feed for programing. do not want to register with the FCC. CB is what I need from what I know. What is a simple & recommended:

120v Or 220v base unit
120v Or 220v Amp (not afraid to push some power)
Antenna

If there is another medium I should consider broadcasting over, please let me know.

Thanks, The Duck!

If you're planning on performing illegal activity why would you expect law-abiding people to help you?

For about $25/hour, you can get onto shortwave and be heard all over the world. Try WWCR at 100000 watts. They may be only $12/hour. Cult of subgenius uses them. just don't say -fuck- all the time. http:// www.wwcr.com/buying-airtime.html

Or you can spend $$$$ for 100watts and have the FCC grab it a week later when they raid your house ;)

My Chinese military receiver uses that same voltage. 90VDC & 1.5VDC The D cells for the 1.5Fil and I used a stack of 10 rechargable NMHyDr 9V batteries from Habor Frieght in series making 90VDC and its rechargable.

===============================

If these 9v NiMH batteries are of the E-block type (also known as type 6LR61) their capacity is likely not in excess of 200mAh ,how long can you run that radio on 1 charge ?

Is this for online publication or for radio broadcast? As others have suggested, you'll want to check what's permitted in your locality. It's also worth pointing out that this newsgroup (yes, this is Usenet, that comes as a surprise to some) is generally related to discussions on radio experimentation. That said, microphones feature here too.

One thing I've found to be a real nuisance, particularly on some Toshiba laptops, is internal noise pickup. The onboard sound interface is notorious for picking up all kinds of interference from 50Hz humm from mains, through to PCI bus activity. A combination of USB audio, and earthing the laptop chassis seems to work however.

When broadcasting via RF, it's also important to watch for RF feedback into the transmitter's input. I've had this happen to me a couple of times. A low-pass filter is needed to reject the high-frequency signal being induced into the audio signal lines. Often, this is done using ferrite suppression sleeves over the audio leads.

It also is wise to ensure there is separation between the transmitter, and any receivers =97 I had a very interesting "ringing" effect by accidence once when I had my FT-290RII, sitting on top of a FT-897D tuned to the same frequency. The FT-897D was monitoring my uplink whilst I was broadcasting the WIA news service on the FT-290R II (I'm backup transmitter for the service on VK4RBN; 147.000MHz in Brisbane).

Despite the netbook being connected via an audio transformer straight into the microphone port on the FT-290, I could hear this ringing noise on the transmission. Turned the volume down on the FT-897D, and the ringing went away.

No mystery. Actually, I love the 880H too. But, I already have two other 2m/440 radios which I use all the time. I bought the 880 (and accessories) to learn about and basically immerse myself in what D-Star was all about. And, it's very cool indeed, but at the moment, I'd like to sell that part of my ham radio life and use the funds to immerse myself in another part of ham radio life. The wonder of ham radio, always other avenues to explore.

I have a Grundig YB400PE which has been working well for several years.
Within the last week, the steps for MW tuning have changed from 10/1 (North America) to 9/1.
I don't remember changing anything to have made this happen.
I have tried to revert to standard settings for North America by using the reset switch, but this has not changed the step setting.
Does anyone have a suggestion on how to get back the North American step setting for the MW band?

Thanks

There is a Power ON + sequence. Here's the manual for download:

IMPORTANT!

SET-UP FOR NORTH AMERICAN USE

North America's AM stations are exactly 10 kilohertz apart. At the factory, the radio is set up for the 9 kilohertz spacing of stations in Europe. To change this to the 190KHZ spacing:

1. With the radio OFF, press and release the AM button once.

2. Immediately press and release the STEP button. "10 KHz" now appears in the right side of the display and will disappear in a few seconds.

This change will be permanently in the radio's memory as long as batteries are not taken out for a period of ten minutes or more.

When travelling outside of the Americas, use the same procedure as above to set the spacing back to 9 kilohertz.

John

Manual programming of the Wouxun Handy Talkies (HT's) can be confusing. This is a simplified procedure to manually program the HT. This is for the models in the kg-uv(XXX) family,

Overview;
To program the Wouxun HT you must understand that you must program the numerical information (the Channel - Frequency - Freq. Offset & direction - tones) in the Menu 21 "Frequency" mode and then save it, you then change the mode of menu 21 to "name" mode and then enter the (Repeater's Name) and save it.
Notes: when you are programming the HT in menu modes you have approximately a 4 second time window to make a change, if change is not made in that time window, the HT times out and you will have to re-do the entry, usually by pushing the red "menu" button twice takes you back to where you timed out. You may also use the Frequency knob nearest to the antenna, in place of the arrow up/down to change the parameters once in the programming mode.
Procedure;
First thing is to have the programming data avaiable. I would suggest make a programming sheet that has the following programming data.
1. Frequency in 6 digits (XXX.XXX)
2. PL / CTCSS Tone frequencies (if used)
3. Repeater frequency offset and direction (if used).
4. Name of the programmed frequency in 6 characters or less (repeater name etc.)
5. Assignment of the the Wouxun memory position number for the display.
Power on the HT and press the green "TDR" button. Press the red "Menu" button and then the 1 (menu 1), then the red "Menu" button again, using the arrow up/down until �STEP" "5.00" is indicated on display, then press red "menu" button to save it.

Menu 21 (frequency mode) Press the red "Menu" button and then the 2 and 1 (menu 21), then the red "Menu" button, press the arrow up/down until "FREQ" is indicated on display, then press red "menu" button to save it and then the "Exit" button (you should have a upper display with a frequency number on it (XXX.XXX). Using the HT's key pad input the desired "repeaters" frequency using all six digits (XXX.XXX) and verify on the display.

Menu 16 (PL Tone mode) Press the red "Menu" button and then the 1 and 6 (menu 16), then the red "Menu" button, using the arrow up or down buttons until "the desired tone freq" is indicated on display, then press red "menu" button to save it.
If you are using CTSS, tone encoded squelch, repeat the tone mode above, using menu 15 in place of menu 16.

Menu 24 (Frequency offset DIRECTION) Press the red "Menu" button and then the 2 and 4 (menu 24), then the red "Menu" button, using the HTs key pad to enter the repeaters frequency offset direction "SHF-D"(+ / - / off), then press red "menu" button to save. The display should now display the offset direction.

Menu 23 (Frequency offset) Press the red "Menu" button and then the 2 and 3 (menu 23), then the red "Menu" button, using the key pad enter the repeaters frequency offset, then press red "menu" button. The display should now display the offset frequency (XX.XXX).

Menu 27 (Saving (MEM-CH)) This saves your entered data, Press the red "Menu" button and then the 2 and 7 (menu 27), press the red "menu" button, then using the UP/Down arrow buttons select the memory number you would like to save the data in, and once selected push the red "menu" button to save. NOTE: If the numbered memory location is used the "CH-"XX is displayed and if you push the red "menu" button you will over write that channel. If there is only the memory number displayed (NOT the "CH-"), that memory location is unused and available for storage.

Menu 21 (NAME mode) Press the red "Menu" button and then the 2 and 1 (menu 21), then the red "Menu" button, press the arrow up or down until "NAME" is indicated on display, then press red "menu" button. After 5 seconds, the display should now display a six digit name (CH-XXX).

Menu 26 (Channel Name) Press the red "Menu" button and then the 2 and 6 (menu 26), then the red "Menu" button, for this function you use the channel/frequency KNOB, nearest the HTs antenna. When the knob is rotated clockwise (CW) the digits advance (A-Z and 0-9) and then repeat, then you rotate the knob counter clockwise (CCW) the "space" advances. If you over advance, it will wrap around. Once you have the name spelled out, you must quickly save it (4 second time out) or you will loose it.

KENWOOD RC-D710 Control Panel. This is the special APRS-aware head replacement for Kenwood's TM-V71 VHF/UHF Dual-band Transceiver. I bought this new replacement head brand new in late August 2010 at the Boxboro Ham Fest in Massachusetts from HRO. The unit is just like brand new, perfect condition, used in the shack only, never mobile...the box (original box) includes everything: the replacement front panel itself, mounting brackets, hardware, cables, manual, still unfilled-out warranty, CDROM, etc. I'm also including the Kenwood TM-D710A/E Nifty! Mini-Manual ($19.95), an absolutely superb reference (with this you'll never refer to Kenwood's own docs!) If you want to learn about APRS and have a TM-V71, you're all set. You can see what's going on in the APRS world right on the front panel itself. A very cool product. Will sell the whole package including everything listed here for $295...and I'll pay insured Priority Mail shipping to the USA (lower 48 only.)
$295 for control panel, nifty manual and free shipping

Or, you can go to HRO and get one brand new for $150:

No connection, just an FYI ported from the APRS reflector.

I have recently come across a Motorola MSR 2000 Repeater in an old warehouse that I purchased. I have no intentions on using this unit, nor do I know anything about it. It seems to be complete and was attached to a ton of other "radio" equipment when I found it. Almost 100% positive that it works.

The power supply reads 250w, but not exactly sure what it means as far as how it works or where it can be used.

If you have any information you can provide me, it would be very helpful.

Not sure what this thing is worth. Offer me something reasonable and you can be the happy new owner.

Thanks, Kyle

Changes followed by "|".

After a 30-day public discussion and feedback period to gauge reader opinions in March of 2009:

http://groups.google.com/group/rec.radio.amateur.moderated/browse_thread/thread/d7d337db35f23326

the rec.radio.amateur.moderated Moderation Team has decided to consider amending its charter, and permit limited simultaneous crossposting to rec.radio.amateur.moderated and one other unmoderated amateur-radio-related discussion newsgroup. We are currently trying this on a temporary basis (90 days, through early July 2009), and adopt it permanently if successful.

Approved rec.radio.amateur.* newsgroups are those that are currently listed in the latest version of the "List of Big Eight Newsgroups" which is crossposted monthly to news.announce.newgroups, news.groups, and news.lists.misc.

Approved alt.radio.amateur.* and alt.ham-radio.* newsgroups are those that have been created consistent with the suggestions in "So You Want to Create an Alt Newsgroup" at:

http://www.faqs.org/faqs/alt-creation-guide/

Approved regional hierarchy newsgroups are those that contain either "radio.amateur" or "ham-radio" in their names, including uk.radio.amateur and aus.radio.amateur.misc.

We will make every reasonable effort to keep our list of approved newsgroups up-to-date. In case we have overlooked any, and a submission is rejected in error as a result, the rejected submitter can E-mail us at our administrative contact address (in the signature at the bottom of this article, and the default Reply-To for the rejection message) requesting that it be added, and that the article be approved. We may still choose to reject articles crossposted to any alt.* newsgroup with an inappropriate name, including obscene language, embedded name-calling, or encouragement of unlawful conduct.

Please direct any comments, questions, or criticisms to rec-radio-amateur-moderated-request@panix.com.

Hello Dennis,

I would offer a input on one of your wants. The Stoner 80-10 never made it into production, however, KLM bought a private label of it called the Force 5.   I have the manual for the Force 5 and some Cubic manuals of the 150 which was the parent design for both.

Mel

it was written, including: |

rec.radio.amateur.boatanchors |
rec.radio.amateur.dx |
rec.radio.amateur.equipment |
rec.radio.amateur.homebrew |
rec.radio.amateur.moderated |

Anyone using this combination? The headphone works fine, but I have some difficulties using the microphone. I've used an 8 kOhm resistor for the bias, and as soon as a noise or my voice triggers VOX, it won't release it. Since accessing vox/antivox pots in the ts450 is a pain (who the hell thought of putting them on the underside of the radio, seriously?), I'd like to know if someone is happily using the microphone before I dismount half the shack to be able to get at the pots.

Thanks

I have a very early IFR 1000 A. I am looking for service information and schematics for an IFR 1000 A that has a serial number 208. It is very different from units above serial 500 or so. Thanks in advance...

Hello everyone,

I have a Mini-circuits RF digital step attenuator with the following specs for sale. It has NEVER been used (not even mated once)!

Model: ZX76-15RS-PP+
Frequency range: DC - 4 GHz Control: Parallel 5-bit control in 0.5 dB increments (0.1 dB accuracy typical)
Range: 15.5 dB
Interface: SMA
The control cable and CD comes with it (ZX76-WP+). Find it on page 10 of the below PDF.

Here is a link to the datasheet:
http://www.minicircuits.com/pdfs/ZX76-15R5-PP+.pdf

Currently retails for $73.95 for the attenuator and $22.95 for the cable ($96.90 total).

Asking $60 shipped for everything since it is brand new. According to my invoice it cost $108 shipped to me, so my loss is your gain!

Willing to take reasonable offers, but no low-balling please.

No. but you can download the manual from the Boat Anchor Manual Archive at http://bama.edebris.com/manuals/ for free. Installation instructions are terse and they assume some previous experience in working on radios. An older ARRL Handbook or RSGB manual will explain how a Q-multiplier works and where they should be attached in the receiver. If you have other questions, it is best to ask them on the Usenet rec.radio.amateur.boatanchors newsgroup.

has a very nice discussion of how they work, with a couple of schematics and a writeup by William Orr.

Ken,

A word to the wise... The alt.ham-radio newsgroups essentially have no traffic. The correct place to list radio items for sale is the rec.radio.swap Usenet group.

I will sell to out of the USA, but I only ship to USA. (Foreign buyers need US agents)
I accept PayPal, Checks on USA banks and U.S.Postal Money Orders. (I

Mark-

1. Microphone picking up sound of a fan.
2. Microphone magnetically coupling to power transformer or fan.
3. Bad shield connection on microphone cable.
4. CW Key plugged-in and keyed.
5. Monitor feature activated, providing audio feedback.
6. PL tone activated.

Try using the microphone as a "probe" to locate source of the tone.

7. Decoupling/filter capacitor in V+ line to audio amplifier is bad, allowing audio to couple back to earlier stage that shares the same V+ source. Oscillation is sometimes in the form of "motorboating", a low frequency relaxation oscillation.

In my opinion - that is kind of over kill.
You can buy a decent bubble pack GMRS Motorola radio for under $120 a set.

You must remember that reception for UHF is line of sight and unless you have a clear view of the repeater and permission to use it - your handi talkie is not going to transmit or receive any further then a $40 Motorola walkie talkie in the woods.

The trees absorb the signals and the signals will not go up one hill and down the next - nor will it shine up over one mountain and down the next.

The limitations are the size of the battery, the size of the antenna - since all signals reduce at the square of the distance away from the transmitter.

Most of those radios do not come with a 16 inch antenna which is what it would need for the bare minimum amount of transmit and receive power on those frequencies.

If you're in the field away from commercial power, you'll either need carry a stock of alkaline batteries (and make sure you have a battery pack for your HT that can take them), or have some other way to charge whatever sort of rechargeable cells you choose.

After a 30-day public discussion and feedback period to gauge reader opinions in March of 2009:

http://groups.google.com/group/rec.radio.amateur.moderated/browse_thread/thread/d7d337db35f23326

the rec.radio.amateur.moderated Moderation Team has decided to consider amending its charter, and permit limited simultaneous crossposting to rec.radio.amateur.moderated and one other unmoderated amateur-radio-related discussion newsgroup. We are currently trying this on a temporary basis (90 days, through early July 2009), and adopt it permanently if successful.

Approved rec.radio.amateur.* newsgroups are those that are currently listed in the latest version of the "List of Big Eight Newsgroups" which is crossposted monthly to news.announce.newgroups, news.groups, and news.lists.misc.

Approved alt.radio.amateur.* and alt.ham-radio.* newsgroups are those that have been created consistent with the suggestions in "So You Want to Create an Alt Newsgroup" at:

http://www.faqs.org/faqs/alt-creation-guide/

Approved regional hierarchy newsgroups are those that contain either "radio.amateur" or "ham-radio" in their names, including uk.radio.amateur and aus.radio.amateur.misc.

We will make every reasonable effort to keep our list of approved newsgroups up-to-date. In case we have overlooked any, and a submission is rejected in error as a result, the rejected submitter can E-mail us at our administrative contact address (in the signature at the bottom of this article, and the default Reply-To for the rejection message) requesting that it be added, and that the article be approved. We may still choose to reject articles crossposted to any alt.* newsgroup with an inappropriate name, including obscene language, embedded name-calling, or encouragement of unlawful conduct.

Please direct any comments, questions, or criticisms to rec-radio-amateur-moderated-request@panix.com.

I'm looking for charger/maintainer -- either an off-the-shelf unit or a schematic so I can build my own -- suitable for a flooded deep-cycle battery, either a pair of 6V "golf cart" batteries in series or a Group 31.

I don't want an RFI generator: I already have one.

I already have a few 13.8V 25A power supplies, one of which I would be quite willing to "crank up" to a higher voltage to compensate for the voltage drop in the control circuitry.

Something like the West Mountain Radio "Super PwrGate" (PG40S) would work, although the automatic switch-over feature is not essential. That device is intended for Gel-Cell and AGM batteries and not recommended for flooded batteries -- absorption-charge voltage too low and float-charge voltage too high, their tech support people tell me.

I am quite happy with my IOTA DLS-45 with the IQ Smart Controller

http://www.iotaengineering.com/iq.htm

Once a week it equalizes my batteries using 14v pulses. The batteries are on their 14th year and can still run my shack for 5 days. (down from a week when I initially purchased the batteries and charger)

I wish I'd known about that IQ unit before I bought an Astron RS-35A just a month or two back.

I was hoping I could find something not too expensive to take power from that P/S or from one of my RF-quiet "switchers" to look after the batteries. Texas Instruments has battery-charging ICs, but I haven't seen a practical circuit that uses one.

Hey OT:

I used to charge a deep cycle flooded marine battery with the TI UC3906
data sheet here: http://focus.ti.com/lit/ds/symlink/uc3906.pdf
all you need is a few precision pots and the low resistance resistor you need to set the max charge current.
I had a 115AH deep cycle flooded marine battery that with a straight no frills charge took 4 days to charge fully, tested by hydrometer
With 1 foot of 14 gauge wire for the max charge resistor and precision 10 turn pots to set the other settings, and a 30 amp PNP pass transistor on a fan cooled heat sink I was able to charge that battery in 8 hours full charge, then it goes to a maintain charge, not a trickle charge.

Basically I was charging at 23 amps after the UC3906 checked that no cells were bad, then once it gets to a predetermined voltage it scales back the charge, all the levels for this are set by multiple precision pots and you can take it thru 4 levels of charge. I had the max setting for 15.5 volts when the battery was fully charged to roll back to maintain charge.

You will need a unregulated 18 volt supply, because the PNP drops 4 volts in VSAT. and once it gets the battery up there in voltage, the

PNP doesn't need to be full on in VSAT

After using auto chargers and straight charges I found the UC3906 the best choice over all.

There is a switch mode TI chip also but you don't want that one

Mouser stocks these last time I bought them it was like $4 each.

You do not need anything too fancy...

to "float" the batteries all you need to do is keep them at approx 2.25 volts / cell...so it's possible that your 13.8 v charger will do the job...

You can test it by checking the total voltage after a 24 hour period...

ideally, a 12v battery should float at about 13.5 volts.

If the float voltage is a little higher or lower it won't be too critical...but make sure it's well below the 14.2 v gassing point.

I've been in the lead-acid battery business for 36 years...
so have quite a bit of long term empirical data

Hey OM:

All well and good but taking the battery up to 15.5volts is ok as long as you keep adding water and have a well vented area to charge them in. I tried a tested and true way of not going over 14.2 volts took to long to get the full charge you can check it with a hydrometer and see that best you can get is 80% of full charge going with 14.2 volts.

With a 18volt unregulated supply and the VSAT of 4 volts the max charge current voltage can only be 14.00 volts period you have to take it up to 15.5 volts to get the full charge period.
been there done that.

West Mountain Radio claims that their "Super PwrGate" has a voltage drop of only 0.3V to 0.4V, so they can charge a Gel-Cell battery from a 13.8V P/S or can handle an AGM battery simply by raising the P/S voltage to 14.1V. Any idea what they use for a pass transistor?

The "Micro M+" solar battery charger described in some recent editions of the ARRL Handbook uses the STP80PF55 P-Channel MOSFET (80 Amp, R[DSon] = 0.016 Ohm) as the control device. Could this be used in conjunction with the UC3906 without too much difficulty?

That's the entire point of float charging a battery... you do not have to add water and you do not have excess hydrogen production...in "normal" charging...the battery voltage would rise to approx 15volts during the last 20 minutes or so of charge

The OP specifically said he wanted to float charge

The West Mountain Radio people told me that their "Super PwrGate"'s 13.5V float setting voltage (not adjustable) might be too high for a flooded deep-cycle battery. Their user manual refers users to www.windsun.com/batteries/battery_FAQ.htm which recommends per-cell float voltages flooded deep-cycle batteries that translate to 13.02V to 13.20V for a 6-cell battery.

Oops! I was writing from memory and got it wrong: West Mountain Radio specify cranking the P/S up to 14.1V for Gel-Cells and to 14.5V for AGM batteries -- to allow absorption-charge voltages of 13.8V and 14.2V, respectively.

And the voltage drop is 0.25V to 0.5V, depending on current.

Hi folks,
I looking for the PA-cover of the IC-726.   In the service manual the part ist shown on page 4-2, " PA unit and accessories" .   Label number 2, order number 8510005462 . Is anyone out there who stripped an old radio and save this tin. Several parts were missing after a long lasting repair proceeding. This is the last part I need for completing this radio.

work. Replaced some electrolitic capacitors and it worked for a day or so then did the same thing. now the voltage reg. next to the capacitors blew up as well.
need someone who knows his stuff to find the heart of the problem (or find a new circut board.) Help!

This MVA is the enhanced version for the 99 chan. MT1000

After a 30-day public discussion and feedback period to gauge reader opinions in March of 2009:

http://groups.google.com/group/rec.radio.amateur.moderated/browse_thread/thread/d7d337db35f23326

the rec.radio.amateur.moderated Moderation Team has decided to consider amending its charter, and permit limited simultaneous crossposting to rec.radio.amateur.moderated and one other unmoderated amateur-radio-related discussion newsgroup. We are currently trying this on a temporary basis (90 days, through early July 2009), and adopt it permanently if successful.

Approved rec.radio.amateur.* newsgroups are those that are currently listed in the latest version of the "List of Big Eight Newsgroups" which is crossposted monthly to news.announce.newgroups, news.groups, and news.lists.misc.

Approved alt.radio.amateur.* and alt.ham-radio.* newsgroups are those that have been created consistent with the suggestions in "So You Want to Create an Alt Newsgroup" at:

  http://www.faqs.org/faqs/alt-creation-guide/

Approved regional hierarchy newsgroups are those that contain either "radio.amateur" or "ham-radio" in their names, including uk.radio.amateur and aus.radio.amateur.misc.

We will make every reasonable effort to keep our list of approved newsgroups up-to-date. In case we have overlooked any, and a submission is rejected in error as a result, the rejected submitter can E-mail us at our administrative contact address (in the signature at the bottom of this article, and the default Reply-To for the rejection message) requesting that it be added, and that the article be approved. We may still choose to reject articles crossposted to any alt.* newsgroup with an inappropriate name, including obscene language, embedded name-calling, or encouragement of unlawful conduct.

Please direct any comments, questions, or criticisms to rec-radio-amateur-moderated-request@panix.com.

Looking for about 20 Teflon type coax jumpers (RG-142 size coax or similar). Need N-Female chassis mount on one end. Remaining end can be any connector as I cut them off and solder direct to circuit board. Jumpers need to be about 16" long or so. Emailed Hangar 18 surplus with no reply.

Which valley? I live in Cook's Valley, but I'd be the only one doing that sort of thing here and I'm not doing it so it must be a different valley. ;)

The addition of a new metal roof to my home has prompted my interest in a small rooftop tower. I am considering the Glen Martin Engineering 4.5- and 8-foot aluminum towers. However, in doing some research on the company, I have read many reviews (particularly on eHam.net) where people brought up shoddy workmanship such as misdrilled holes, double-punched slots, burrs, incorrect documentation, missing parts, etc. Many complaints were about shipping too. However there also were several people well-satisfied with their products.

Because of this, I decided to check with the Better Business Bureau of Boonville, MO, where the company is located. They have a B+ rating, and the judging criteria of the BBB tends to give the company an overly positive rating in my opinion. Interestingly, SalaryList.com gives the fall 2006 salaries of design engineers at Glen Martin to be $41K and that of a project manager to be $32K. The average salary for the county at that time was $26.4K. I consider these to be rather low. I have not seen any ads by the company in QST recently either, and the League has stringent standards for any company advertising in a League publication.

None of this gives me a "warm fuzzy feeling" about the company and its products, but I am willing to keep an open mind. I would therefore appreciate any readers of these newsgroups posting their experiences with the company and its products.

My application, by the way, is to support a 43-foot vertical and small Yagi's for 6- and 2-meter SSB.

Hi all,

I've decided to do something that I've wanted to do for a long time, and that is to get my ham license. I've got the book and I'm reading up. I'm signed up for a test in December. I'm pretty excited. But I've been looking around just "window shopping" for components to build a radio in the coming months. I have a probably really basic question. How do you power the radio itself? I have a scanner, and I know that it came with a wallplug, but when I'm looking around at radios I don't see any mention of this.

example; I look at a radio and it says "power; supplied DC power adapter 13.8v" or something to that effect.

How do I run this thing indoors? I don't want to run this in my car. I know it can be done, but how? I'm just not sure of the name of the thing that lets me go from wall plug --> radio. Once I get that, I'll be good. I've searched sites like radioshack for things like "power adapter" "radio power supply" to no avail. I live in a place with out many shops so my main shopping will be done online unfortunately.

Thanks for any help.

You'll probably want a "switch mode" supply, as they are way lighter and more efficient. Get one built for amateur radio, as they don't make HF noise.

There are a few Hams that bad mouth MFJ (Mighty Fine Junk) but I have been dealing with them for a long time and have never regreted a purchase.

Acquire a recent copy of the ARRL Handbook (last five - ten years) and use it as a reference.

Good luck with the test and I hope to meet you on the air!

What you are looking for is simply called a "Power Supply". I converts the AC from the wall to DC...most commonly to 13VDC (often just called a 12 Volt Power Supply). You will need one appropriate to the radio you will be using as far as current capability. If you are going to be powering a modern solid state HF radio that puts out up to about 100 Watts, you should get a supply that can put out about 20 or 25 Amps. Is is always OK to get one that can put out more current such as 37 Amps or 50 Amps, etc. than you need at present. It is nice to go "oversize" right off the bat if cost is not a concern. As you add equipment (more radios, amplifiers, etc.) you will require a power supply that can supply all of the currents for each piece of equipment hooked up to the power supply added together.

Most transceivers now do not have built in power supplies. They are designed to operate on what most people just say 12 volts. This is just a nominal value. They are really made to operate best around 13.8 volts. That is the nominal value a car electrical system has when the motor is running.

It depends on how much power the transceiver you want to get as to the power supply you will need. The Astron brand is good. I have a 50 amp supply I have used for 15 years without any problems. It is the analog type and not the switching kind. The basic design goes way back over 30 years. Very simple and almost fool proof.   For most people I think a 35 amp supply is the best for the money. It will power most of the so called 100 watt output transceivers. That 35 amps is the most it can supply. You can always use devices that pull less current. Just like a 120 volt socket in your house. It does not mater what you plug into the 120 volt socket, the device will only take wht current it needs if it is rated for 120 volts. You only get into trouble if you have several devices that take more current.   With my 50 amp supply I have several transceivers hooked up to it that draw a lot of current on transmitt. As long as I only transmitt with one at a time, it will handle the currrent just fine.

Here is a link to the Astron site.

I like the RS-A series. The RS-35A is what I would recommend to most new hams.

I guess that you know you can go to www.qrz.com and take some practice tests. When you get to the 90% mark you should be ready for the real test.

I used these an Gordon West's Extra book to go from no license to Amateur Extra in 5 weeks. Of course when I took my Extra test at Grumman their were 12 year old Asian middle-schoolers getting theirs.

I didn't look for a VE until I was at 100% on 3 consecutive tries on the practice exams. The FCC tests are easier than the practice exams.

I used the Gorden West tapes to learn the code. That was many years ago. They seem good to me. I did not use anything to learn the written tests. I have been in electronics for many years so the technical questions were easy, just had to learn the rules.

I don't see how you can say the FCC test are any easier than the practice exams. The question and answers are suspose to be the same.   While I have been a ham for over 35 years, I hear how hard the tests are suspose to be. I do go to the QRZ practice tests about once a year just to see how well I can do without the pressure. Usually get over 90% in a very short time. Now the tests are just how well one can memorize the Q&As.

I always tell the new people to just memorize the Q&As and do not try to learn anything. Then if they are really serious about learning instead of talking, get a Handbook and study that. I almost think it should be required to own a Handbook before you take the test or get a license. Atleast have access to one if there are several hams in one family.

Tempo AC-1 power supply in the speaker cabinet. Works. Looks good.
$90.00
plus a shipping charge that would be for 25 pounds. No pickup.

(2) Ohmite Dummy Antennas, 250 watts each. Standard tube type 4 pin base.
The base on one needs replacing. See pic. $20.00, plus a shipping charge that would be for 2 pounds. No pickup.

Fluke Bench Power Supply. Model 407. $90.00 obo, plus a shipping charge

40 pounds. Will allow pickup here in Auburn, CA.

UHF homebrew transmitter with a PL-4D21 tube. Great looking. A Motorola Power Supply that has the high voltage transformer already removed for shipping. However, I don't expect that anyone wants to pay for what I would charge for packing this PS and transformer. So this is for pickup here in Auburn. The actual net weight is: Transmitter 8 pounds. Power Supply 75 pounds. and the transformwer 50 pounds. If I pack, will want $75 for my labor and materials, plus the actual FedEx charge.
I know nothing more than what one can see about these items. I would see the power supply with transformer separate only after the transmitter is sold. I have no way of setting a price for these items. Please make an offer.

clears)
If there is to be a pickup I must be paid in full in advance.

This is not an add for wanted/for sale, rather, I'm looking for information on finding vintage headphones for my Hammarlund shortwave radio. It was made in the 30's-40's (an HQ120) and I'm wondering what kind of phones would be in keeping with the 30's-40's theme here. I'm new to the Hammarlund, but not shortwave. I am at that point where I'm going to start collecting the older shortwave/ham stuff before it all dissapears (unlikely hopefully) and one thing for the older vintage stuff to aquire would be cosmetically appealing headphones fitting the earlier era of Radios. I'm aware these (Hammarlund) radios came with speakers, which interest me as well, however for now I'd like a bit of input from some of you vintage nuts out there. What ohms should I be looking for too? Any suggestions are greatly appreciated.....Rich AKA Plotus.

This guy carries 30 pounds of tools up the ladder with him? Most climbers I know take the end of a line with them, then attach a pulley where they'll be working, then they send the end of the rope back down.
Then the ground crew can send up tools, parts, whatever, and you don't have to worry about not forgetting anything but the rope and the pulley.

Maybe he works alone...

Looking to buy the Channelmaster HD 8bay for the HD TV.

I have heard some about putting two up each aimed at a different major city from where I am.

Any tips on best way to do this? or not to do this? or better way to do this?

After a 30-day public discussion and feedback period to gauge reader opinions in March of 2009:

http://groups.google.com/group/rec.radio.amateur.moderated/browse_thread/thread/d7d337db35f23326

the rec.radio.amateur.moderated Moderation Team has decided to consider amending its charter, and permit limited simultaneous crossposting to rec.radio.amateur.moderated and one other unmoderated amateur-radio-related discussion newsgroup. We are currently trying this on a temporary basis (90 days, through early July 2009), and adopt it permanently if successful.

Approved rec.radio.amateur.* newsgroups are those that are currently listed in the latest version of the "List of Big Eight Newsgroups" which is crossposted monthly to news.announce.newgroups, news.groups, and news.lists.misc.

Approved alt.radio.amateur.* and alt.ham-radio.* newsgroups are those that have been created consistent with the suggestions in "So You Want to Create an Alt Newsgroup" at:

  http://www.faqs.org/faqs/alt-creation-guide/

Approved regional hierarchy newsgroups are those that contain either "radio.amateur" or "ham-radio" in their names, including uk.radio.amateur and aus.radio.amateur.misc.

We will make every reasonable effort to keep our list of approved newsgroups up-to-date. In case we have overlooked any, and a submission is rejected in error as a result, the rejected submitter can E-mail us at our administrative contact address (in the signature at the bottom of this article, and the default Reply-To for the rejection message) requesting that it be added, and that the article be approved. We may still choose to reject articles crossposted to any alt.* newsgroup with an inappropriate name, including obscene language, embedded name-calling, or encouragement of unlawful conduct.

Please direct any comments, questions, or criticisms to rec-radio-amateur-moderated-request@panix.com.

In order of preference

1: 2 antennas, 2 transmission lines, switch at receiver

2: 1 antenna, 1 rotor, 1 rotor cable/transmission line, rotor control set top box

3: 2 antennas, 1 hybrid combiner on pole, 1 transmission line (many opportunities for phasing weirdness and cancellations, etc.)

I found them mostly more expensive. Averag about $85 each.
I'm sure it good though. I myself would just use an combiner first see how that works. If you got low band analog, does not necessarily mean you will pick up anything far away.

No, just use one and see what you pick up first.

Hi
Thanks for the reply

I do have one up now. It is only a 4bay but I can only aim to one direction to one major city. On the back of the antenna I pick up another major city's broadcasts and just happens to be right behind. But when the clouds or rain are there it gets poorer reception and the HD channels pixel a lot and I loose them. Mostly the football and hockey games and always right at the most awkward moments.

So I want two up to aim at each market. Ya, they are only about 70 dollars each and a splitter.

Anyone had success with this? Some say you get a ghosting affect.

Thanks for any tips

No ghosts on digital. The decoders subtract multipath.

If you have trouble with moisture it is usually because your connections are not water tight. Is there a tropo duct to the station on the 180 degree beam of your antenna? Like San Diego into Santa Barbara? Not a reliable mode of propagation for entertainment use.

If, indeed, the two directions of interest are 180 degrees (+/- 20deg.)
with respect to each other, then I'd mount them back-to-back on the mast and do the splitter lash-up right at that point.

Remember: You're not pointing lasers -- you're 'aiming' blunderbusses.

> Anyone had success with this? Some say you get a ghosting affect.

You'll be less likely to suffer multi-path reception (causing ghosting with analog signals) with the two antennas at 180 degrees from each other.

The Real Difficulty with what you're trying to do would be (could arise) if the two directions of interest were, say, only 50-80 degrees apart.

After it's all said and done, tho', a lot of it is Just Black Magic. :-)

Ok

Some good advice

Thanks

I will put them in 180deg. your comments were -or+20degrees. That will work well.

I didn't know that the ghosting was only affected on the analog.

What about that splitter? Is that just a regular splitter or is there something available to aid in the signal or signal strength? Any types of a preamp splitter or would I have to power that?

I want to put this up high on the tower and leave it. One time. I simply do not like climbing that thing anymore than I need to. I am sure you hams with very high towers can relate to that.

Thanks

Does any one know where to find the Hitachi hybrid circuit PF0310A, which is the RF power driver for the Yaesu FT-847 transceiver?

On the Internet I (perhaps) only found a PF0310 (without the A), but it is somewhat different.

Thanks & regards.

A Radio Shack 75 Ohm 2 way splitter can also be used as a combiner to put 2 antennas on a single transmission line. Be sure to ground it to your tower. And use some kind of weatherproofing (i.e. drip loops and co-ax seal).  Use a UL/NEC approved grounding device where the transmission line enters the building.

I would suggest this is not strictly true.

You won't see ghosting with digital TV, but if you're receiving the same signal via two different paths (which is what caused ghosting in analog) your digital TV may not be able to decode that signal at all. You won't see ghosts on the screen, but you may not be able to receive anything from some stations.

Digital TVs do have circuits that address this problem. It's not as if you stand no chance of receiving a digital station if you had any ghosting at all from its analog predecessor. But the correction circuits aren't perfect and if you ignore the problem altogether, you may miss out on some channels.

Combining two antennas can be rather tricky to do well; you can get odd cancellation and interference effects. Switching arrangement may work better.

Alternate approaches are:

- Use one antenna (single- or multi-bay) and a remote-controlled mechanical rotator.

- Use an "electrically steerable" antenna - some of these can be controlled/steered automatically by some newer digital television sets, via a control voltage sent up the coax.

I'm reading the calibration section of the service manual for a spectrum analyser, and that tells me to connect the IF output to a 'selective level meter'. I've had a google and can find lots of (mostly antique) models, but I can't seem to find anything that describes what one of these is.

Am I right in guessing it's essentially a narrowband AM receiver with a power meter for the carrier? So a spectrum analyser with only one horizontal point? Are they typically more accurate than a spectrum analyser
- or can I just use another analyser?

Thanks
Theo

An audio distortion analyzer has a kind of selective meter, i.e. a voltmeter with a bandpass filter upstream.

I expect a frequency selective voltmeter will have an accuracy in the order of 5% (<1/2 dB) or 10% (<1 dB) of its full scale reading.  The spectrum analyzer probably has an accuracy measured in dB, probably greater than 1 dB.

I might depend on another analyzer if that was the only option.  Then the question would be whether the second analyzer is less accurate than the one you're trying to calibrate!  Somewhere along the line you need a standard to compare with.

20 high permeability ferrite toroids for sale on eBay, listing 150504494370, availabke to the EU, or further if you can convince me to do it.

http://cgi.ebay.co.uk/ws/eBayISAPI.dll?ViewItem&item=150504494370&ssPageName=STRK:MESELX:IT

I apologise to people in rec.radio.amateur.equipment if this posting is inappropriate. I checked there to see if FS postings were ok, and saw several relevant ones that weren't getting stamped on so I decided to take the risk. The odds are that high permeability ferrites are in such sghort supply in the UK or EU in general that few even think to look often enough on eBay to catch a one week listing, so I took the risk of posting. Most radio enthusiasts might have uses for them, so if it please just one person to see this, it justifies this single post, I hope.

Well bozo, you'd be wrong.

Rec.radio.amateur.equipment is for the discussion of amateur radio equipment.

It's not a forsale newsgroup, never has been.

Just because clueless people put their ads here doesn't make it a forsale newsgroup.

But you've done worse than that. You've seen ads and decided you can post your ad here. But, even if ads were allowed, they would surely be limited to ads for amateur radio equipment, ie transmitters, receivers, transceivers, antennas, and accessories. That's what "equipment" means. Parts do not fit into that misinterpretation of the newsgroup.

Nobody complains? I get tired, since virtually all of the traffic here is ads. That doesn't make it right. And like I said a few weeks or months back, it's absurd to see ads in this newsgroup, because there isn't even content to ensure people are reading the newsgroup to see the ads. If a newsgroup isn't being used, ads won't be an improvement, but they also won't bring in those dollars you want, since few will read a relatively dead newsgroup.

You've failed miserably, even in your silly pronouncement of "being helpful". No, you don't care that someone would miss your ebay auction, you care that you won't get enough bids to drive up the price, so you won't make as much money on the transaction. Which is why you spam this newsgroup, rather than rely on ebay that surely has far more readers than this fairly dead newsgroup.

So I won't do it again. haven't done it before either. of course you don't notice a year of on-topic postings, often helping answer people, you just vent spleen high wide and plentiful because you feel self righteous. And you expect people to READ that drivel? You waste a lot more than I did. YOu must be a truly miserable son of a bitch.

You didn't even notice that I pointed out an eBay listing, did you? For what it's worth, your opinion means nothing. There are people I respect, and I'll listen to those if they speak, but you are NOT among them.

The standard newsgroupe etiquette for eBay postings is to use 'FA:' instead of 'FS:' in the title. The readers that have an issue with auctions can ignore that post. This newsgroup charter does not expressly forbid sales items, but mostly frowns on them. It is mostly a place to share information about various hardware used by radio amateurs.

I have two problems. One, I need to blank a logic board on a MaxTrac. I have the standard RSS, but not the LAB version. I looked on my MOL account, and they have discontinued all RSS for the MaxTracs. Second, I tried to load up my SM50 RSS, and when I try to read the radio, it says model definition file not found. If my files are corrupt, does anyone have this program where they could send me the missing files? Any help is greatly appreciated.

December 12th 2009 - With Christmas just around the corner, I thought
I might as well add a fancy shampoo and conditioner onto my christmas list - in fact, I might as well add a couple of both! The first I have chosen is the body shop banana shampoo and conditioner (see below for pics). Now, admittedly I chose these products because they smell like bananary heaven, but they weren't cheap and the body shop is known for supplying good quality products so I am expecting good things! Each bottle cost =A33.99 for 250ml which is quite pricey because 250ml really isn't that much (especially when you have mega long, thick hair which absorbs conditioner like a sponge!). However, if my hair is left smelling anything like these products, I'll be happy no matter what the condition of it is like!

December 3rd 2009 - Well, I have been using Redken for just over two weeks now and I have to say, I am not overly impressed. I would say that my hair is slightly softer and less brittle feeling, but a slight improvement isn't really good enough when you consider the price of these products. It's very annoying because I have been to hairdressers where they have washed my hair in Redken products and when I leave, my hair is soft, bouncy, shiney - just like a shampoo advert! I can never seem to reproduce this effect at home though, no matter how much money I spend on products. Perhaps it is the hair washing technique rather than the product? Who knows! Anyway, I'm not going to buy Redken again... the hunt for the perfect products continues!

November 15th 2009 - I was having a browse around the internet today when I came across a site selling Redken hair products. Yes that's right, I wasn't looking or anything, I just came across it accidently. I had a look through their different product ranges and read reviews on the various types you could get. I decided that the "all soft" line sounded like it had the most positive results, seemingly transforming people's hair from dry and straw like, to silky soft and smooth. Just what I was after. So I have ordered some and it should arrive in a couple of days. I'm quite apprehensive, afterall, my previous attempts at fixing my hair haven't been all that successful but I am trying to stay positive. At =A320 for the shampoo and conditioner, it was pricey but the cheapest of the ones I have tried so far. Below is a picture of the product range. Gold bottles has to mean good things, right?

After a 30-day public discussion and feedback period to gauge reader opinions in March of 2009:

http://groups.google.com/group/rec.radio.amateur.moderated/browse_thread/thread/d7d337db35f23326

the rec.radio.amateur.moderated Moderation Team has decided to consider amending its charter, and permit limited simultaneous crossposting to rec.radio.amateur.moderated and one other unmoderated amateur-radio-related discussion newsgroup. We are currently trying this on a temporary basis (90 days, through early July 2009), and adopt it permanently if successful.

Approved rec.radio.amateur.* newsgroups are those that are currently listed in the latest version of the "List of Big Eight Newsgroups" which is crossposted monthly to news.announce.newgroups, news.groups, and news.lists.misc.

Approved alt.radio.amateur.* and alt.ham-radio.* newsgroups are those that have been created consistent with the suggestions in "So You Want to Create an Alt Newsgroup" at:

http://www.faqs.org/faqs/alt-creation-guide/

Approved regional hierarchy newsgroups are those that contain either "radio.amateur" or "ham-radio" in their names, including uk.radio.amateur and aus.radio.amateur.misc.

We will make every reasonable effort to keep our list of approved newsgroups up-to-date. In case we have overlooked any, and a submission is rejected in error as a result, the rejected submitter can E-mail us at our administrative contact address (in the signature at the bottom of this article, and the default Reply-To for the rejection message) requesting that it be added, and that the article be approved. We may still choose to reject articles crossposted to any alt.* newsgroup with an inappropriate name, including obscene language, embedded name-calling, or encouragement of unlawful conduct.

Please direct any comments, questions, or criticisms to rec-radio-amateur-moderated-request@panix.com.

I built a Model 749 in the late 1950's. I am now looking to buy a nice one for my antique radio collection. If you have a Knight Kit Ocean Hopper Model 740 or 749 that you would care to part with, please let me know. I would prefer one that works and is in pretty nice shape, and with a case and a few plug-in coils. I have searched E-Bay, but I have not found one yet. I thought that I would try this forum for a more serious search. You can reach me at my e-mail address dhshreve@aol.com or call my cell # at 614-975-0472. Thank you. Dennis Shreve,

This isn't a buy and sell newsgroup, it's for the discussion of amateur radio equipment.

What's more, it's intended for the discussion of current amateur radio equipment.

There's rec.radio.amateur.boatanchor for things old enough, not that it's really intended to be a buy and sell newsgroup either.

The amusing part is that people continue to think newsgroups are a place for ads, yet they do nothing to contribute to them, leaving all these empty spaces where most of the posts are ads, nobody providing actual content that might make the newsgroup a place where people might be reading to see the spam.

When talking about fast hair growth, people always think they are missing out on some miraculous formula that is going to make their hair grow instantly long. The only realistic way to achieve this is implanting hair extensions. However, if you wish to grow your hair naturally long, you will have to dedicate a few months to see amazing results. This article will give you some tips on how you should treat your hair if you want to grow it long and healthy.

Let's start from everyday hair care. Unless you stick to the right routine, you can forget about fast hair growth. It is recommended to shampoo your hair approximately three times a week since this will enable you to keep it clean and oiled enough to stay healthy. Also, regular conditioning is a must. Condition your hair after every washing, by spreading the conditioner from the midsection to the hair ends. Deep conditioning done twice a month can also help your hair.

In addition to these common products, you can make some hair remedies on your own. These are usually herbal mixtures and they can make fast hair growth a piece of cake.

Rosemary is one such plant and you can mix it with your cleansing shampoo. After applying this mixture to your hair, you will have no dandruff problems. Rosemary oil is also wonderful and you can make a mixture of it with arnica, southernwood and marigold oil. This blend, when rubbed onto the scalp, works great against hair loss.

Aloe vera is another useful herb for hair growth boosting and the best thing about it is that it has no negative side effects. You can use only the gel or mix the gel with some other ingredients to make an aloe vera shampoo. The gel is best used when applied directly to the scalp and can enable fast hair growth. Aloe vera contains an enzyme that is said by many to promote hair growth. Aloe shampoo is another excellent remedy. Mix aloe gel with coconut milk and wheat germ oil. This can be very useful for people who have balding problems.

On average, people's hair grows at about half an inch a month. Therefore, if you wish it to grow undisturbed, you have to nourish it as much as possible. Proper hair nourishment includes eating plenty of raw fruits and vegetables. Adding protein will also be beneficial for your hair growth and you will see that the intake of proper nutrients will improve your hair quality. In addition, drink plenty of water on a daily basis. This simple act tends to ill keep your system and body well hydrated.

Bottom line, there is so much you can do to achieve fast hair growth. Combine healthy diet with homemade hair products and your hair will reward you with an amazing growth.

Prom is an important part in life of every individual and everyone wishes to have the best look at prom. The type of hairstyle that you sport at this occasion is very important in determining your style quotient. Further, different women have different type and length of their hair. Thus, it is very important they choose such a hairstyle which suits their personality and type and length of their hair.

Women can choose from a wide variety of prom hairstyles for long hair. These styles include chic cut, boho waves or curly hair. While choosing one out of various prom hairstyles for long hair, you must keep your personality in mind. The style that you would have chosen should suit your personality. Otherwise, such a hairstyle would look odd and ruin your appearance at such an important event of your life.

If you decide to go for a chic cut, your hair would be organized in the form of plates. A strapless dress would be a perfect with such type of hairstyle. You can even choose some trendy accessories to combine them with your hairstyle and dress. One of the most important prom hairstyles for long hair is by organizing your hair in the form of waves. You can even check out various available options on the internet. You will see a variety of possible hairstyles on various websites which you can sport. However, you need to consult a hair style expert before going for any such style.

You would find that you can sport this style with ease besides adding elegance to your appearance. The hair can be organized in a bun and flowers can be added. This would create a sexy look. You can arrange your hair in the form of braids or layers. You wouldn't need any more accessories as the combination of flowers along with the exciting hairstyle would provide you enough elegance. In fact, overuse of accessories can ruin your appearance.

Our fire department switched to a 800mhz radio system we are currently trying to get rid of our old Motorola 400mhz system. Ideally we would like to help a fire department if they could use it, but are willing to explorer other options. Let us know if the is worth our time. We have the complete system working when removed from service.

Just bought a pristine Henry 2K-3 console amp. It was modified by the original owner to add the 160 meter band. I'm looking for comments from users before I put this monster on-line. I'm going to use a keying interface between my IC-746 PRO and the amp. Anything else I should be doing?

I have the original Kantronics KAM (made in the mid 80s) that had the firmware upgraded to v4.00. My manual is for the original firmware but several commands are different. Does anyone have a v4.00 firmware manual in electronic format (pdf) or wouldn't mind scanning their into pdf?

please reply here on the board, and i'll priv-message you my email address.

thanks and 73 in advance

20 meters this time (I have about 500 more.).
All have tested good movements.
Shipping will be calculated based on 14 lbs.
PayPal and USPS money orders are like cash.
Personal checks, I wait to see if they are honored.

I also have about 500 more which today at this time I will sell them ALL at the rate of $4 each.
The list of them is at http://www.muchstuff.com/meters/metersfs.htm
My estimate is that i can get them down to about 20 file size boxes, and about 350 lbs.

I am not offering these meters individually at this time.
They are in a storage a few mile from here.

It is sleek, stylish, clean and popular. Not to mention, celebrities have started to style their hair this way. It also has a bit of a funky twist to it. No, it's not your average every day hairstyle, but more and more people are stepping out into public with it. What style are we talking about? We are talking about the faux Mohawk hairstyle. So, you have decided to get one of these, right? What inspired you to do so? Whatever it is, just make sure it is what you want. You should not do it just because all of the cool people are doing it. This is something that needs to fit your own style and your own personality. If it does not fit you, then do you expect it to look good on you?

This style comes from the more extreme Mohawk. Does it look better on men or on women? In our honest opinion, we believe it looks good on both sexes. It all depends on the individual. That's right, both men and women have started to turn to this. However, we noticed that more men than women are starting to get it.

What length of hair do you need? Basically, it works good for any length. You have long hair? Then you are in luck with this. You no longer have to shave both sides of that head just to get that great look. You can just pink those sides. This is perfect for that weekend fun and it can easily be un-done or tamed down.

Women that have medium length to long hair will be able to backcomb the top part in order to give the higher they want.

So, now you can go get that faux Mohawk done. Oh yeah and don't forget that extra strong hold hairspray!

It's safe to assume all the R39X compatible units have been sifted out...

How radioactive is a box of these meters, Gene?

I was wondering if anyone has been programming the Wouxun handheld via a computer using Wouxun's software.

I eventually got all installed and working, however when I got to print out the details of the frequencies which I had programmed and saved to the hand held (about 120) the print program only allows 3 pages rather than 4 to be printed.

Despite a few emails to Wouxun in China they cannot shed any light on as to why the 4 pages don't print. I suggested that they had a problem with the program and that bought a swift and rapid denial!

I have tried the program on 3 different computers in 3 different locations but to no avail.

They use a .tw as a file extension, and despite trying many programs nothing will open it, as I thought I could do a cut and paste into an Excel file, but cutting from the matrix and pasting to Excel is not accommodated.

Anyone know why motorola only "installed" 8 channels for scanning on a 99 channel radio? Can it be modded to add more slots?

Not unless you can build a PRom Simulator that plugs into where the PRom goes and write a whole bunch of code in the Simulator.....

Hahahahahaha. Because they want you to pay them to turn on the other channels, or change frequencies, or re-program the radio, etc.

I volunteer at a thrift shop and we just received this radio. It seems to be a highly sought after radio. I bought the batteries for it and everything is working. I think. I need a power cord for it and also some guidance as to price....Universal Radio had a damaged one for $999.95..THIS IS ALL FOR CHARITY and not profit motivated .I would like to sell it at a fair price and avoid E-bay.   any help is really appreciated.. thanks

So? Price reflects demand and supply.

If it was a common table radio that everyone has and nobody wants, price would be close to nil, they'd be tossing them out.

I gather they were fairly expensive at the time of manufacture, so likely few were bought. They may have even had limited distribution in North America. So they probably don't exist in large numbers, especially when you subtract those that were tossed (because they don't work, because people didn't know what they inherited) and those who have them may want to hang on to them.

Yet people want them, so the price goes up.

I managed to convince Wouxun that they have a problem with their program, and have promised me with a fix, took 5 emails to convince them!

After a 30-day public discussion and feedback period to gauge reader opinions in March of 2009:

http://groups.google.com/group/rec.radio.amateur.moderated/browse_thread/thread/d7d337db35f23326

the rec.radio.amateur.moderated Moderation Team has decided to consider amending its charter, and permit limited simultaneous crossposting to rec.radio.amateur.moderated and one other unmoderated amateur-radio-related discussion newsgroup. We are currently trying this on a temporary basis (90 days, through early July 2009), and adopt it permanently if successful.

Approved rec.radio.amateur.* newsgroups are those that are currently listed in the latest version of the "List of Big Eight Newsgroups" which is crossposted monthly to news.announce.newgroups, news.groups, and news.lists.misc.

Approved alt.radio.amateur.* and alt.ham-radio.* newsgroups are those that have been created consistent with the suggestions in "So You Want to Create an Alt Newsgroup" at:

http://www.faqs.org/faqs/alt-creation-guide/

Approved regional hierarchy newsgroups are those that contain either "radio.amateur" or "ham-radio" in their names, including uk.radio.amateur and aus.radio.amateur.misc.

We will make every reasonable effort to keep our list of approved newsgroups up-to-date. In case we have overlooked any, and a submission is rejected in error as a result, the rejected submitter can E-mail us at our administrative contact address (in the signature at the bottom of this article, and the default Reply-To for the rejection message) requesting that it be added, and that the article be approved. We may still choose to reject articles crossposted to any alt.* newsgroup with an inappropriate name, including obscene language, embedded name-calling, or encouragement of unlawful conduct.

Please direct any comments, questions, or criticisms to rec-radio-amateur-moderated-request@panix.com.

Folks,
I acquired a SR-MP-25 SRS radio and it seems it is not transmitting. I used H-80 mic, H-189 and H-250 handsets, nothing is transmitted. I am about to check the H-80 mic but suspect something is wrong with the unit. One H-80 came with the unit, I bought a NOS unit too and still nothing. I want to eliminate operator error. Does it have to have certain pins jumped or anything like that? I like the radio I would like to get it working. I am in Bay area, Northern CA;

Unit does receive well hence the issue is with transmission only.

THx,

Zee

Well, hopefully they'll come good with a fix. I have two of these handhelds myself, but I'll admit I've never tried using the PC software for them. I hand-programmed one (using keypad) with the frequencies I wanted (almost filled all 128 channels... they could use more), then constructed a cloning cable to program the second one.

http://stuartl.longlandclan.yi.org/blog/2010/01/04/cloning-the-wouxun-kg-uv= describes the wiring of the cloning cable, should you ever need one.

It was Sony's biggest and most expensive radio in 1975. Pretty rare.
Don't have the new price, though.

If it works well, ask top dollar.

There are over 400 meters in my rented storage.
I wish to now relinquish my proprietary rights to them.
For a small sum of money, someone else can become their master.
SO!............ for a mere $995, or best offer, plus shipping, off they go.
The movements for each of these works.
Small side issue: I estimate they can be packed in about 12 to 15 cartons, and their total weight will be about 280 pounds. I will agree to pay for any amount over 300 pounds. (Considering the total amount paid, I might agree to deliver, but only after receiving payment in full.)

The list is at:
http://www.muchstuff.com/meterbrand.htm
Please be patient - its slow to appear.

I am using KG-UVD1Pv1.16
Is there a later edition?

Do you have the problem of printing the whole frequency list, even with the latest edition the software only prints 3 pages, when 4 is the complete list.

If you want to keep your feet comfort, the MBT shoes you really should try. You may surprise why the MBT shoes were so popular on the market, so at here, Kitty will do a simple introduction about how popular the fashion shoe is.

This multilayered sole are created to mimic the unevenly surfaces for barefoot walking benefits. This design comes from the concept that barefoot walking is beneficial to human body. Barefoot walking can make our feet feel the ground and sometimes the pain will teach us how to correct our postures and gait. While with shoes, we can not feel the pain then our bad habits will continue till we feel more pain on back.

As revolutionary shoes among a range of footwear, MBT shoes, or Masai Barefoot Technology, have an innovative approach to posture training that would be the basic solution of your pain. The secret of MBT shoes lies in the patented sole.

Moreover, this footwear actually activates the whole body that can really stimulate your metabolism and burn more calories. That is to say when MBT shoes work from head to toe to improve the balance and posture of the body, they also can bring you, especially ladies more better figure.

As a matter of fact, MBT shoes can activate our neglected muscles in out feet and evenly distribute the pressure on the back. The instability in the sole ensures that muscles make movements more in line and naturally. That will result in more improved posture and gait, and you body will be straighter, the pain will be less.

Well, do you want to keep your body health? Then the MBT shoe is certainly the best choice for you. If you want to buy the popular shoes, you can visit our website, at the site, you can get the best MBT shoes, at the same time, you can find other popular shoes also, like the Nike basketball shoes, Nike Air Jordan shoes, and so forth, just buy one style for your self, and you will happy for your choice.

My Kenwood TM-V7A has been my backup radio which didn't get used much. I always had planned on installing it into my vehicle when time allowed. However, with my TM-733 going on the fritz, I've had to go to the V7A more often recently.

With that said, I'm noticing an issue with the TM-V7A I'm not sure if it's 'normal'. When I first power it up, I get the banner screen for the unit, then it goes straight to VFO mode. I haven't been able to find any documentation about this, but I thought there should be a way to make it go to memory mode at powerup.

Has anyone else encountered this 'issue' and hopefully found a solution?

Thanks and 73,

Bob, N8MMR

Bob,

It has been a loooong time since I fiddled with the configuration of my rig, but when I turn it back on, it comes up in exactly the mode it was in when I turned it off. Take a look in the menu for Memory, and then Autostore. Turning it on will probably solve your problem. It is covered on page 39 of my manual.

It sounds like either a mechanical short or a processor glitch. Have you tapped it with a screwdriver handle. Have you tried a power cycle? Is there a processor reset button somewhere?

I'm not licensed yet, so have no experience whatsoever, but aren't some of those rigs software upgradable. Might try that.

If you have the newest version of the software, version 4 with USB cable, you would be able to simply cut and paste or copy and paste memories to your heart�s content.

Hello. New poster here. I have a Uniden BC 50xl scanner (low-end, 10 channel). I am new to the hobby, but have some electronic repair experience.

There is an inductor connecting the antenna (center conductor of the ant. BNC) to the main PCB. It has been destroyed and rendered unidentifiable in my unit. It was a mechanical failure (the component separated and lost the color coded paint).

Might someone have a circuit diagramme for this unit? Alternatively, if anyone has one of these units, would you please open your unit and tell me the color code or value for this inductor?

Much thanks....................-huck

It is unlikely that there is an inductor at that point.
It probably is a capacitor.

How did you identify it as an inductor?  Is there lots of wire in it?

Hi Rob, and thanks for your reply.

I believe it was an inductor because it was an axial-lead component resembling a resistor (epoxy painted, with color code bands), except that the color of the base paint was bright neon green, rather than tan.

It was soldered directly to the center terminal of the BNC, and on the other end, to the PCB.

When the scanner stopped receiving, I opened the unit and found the component had separated, with the paint in bits scattered about and unreadable.

It did have a bit of fine wire in it. Unfortunately, after I de-soldered the remains, I lost them. I have done quite a lot of searching on the internet, as well as within this forum. As yet, I have been unsuccessful. I believe the unit was fairly popular, so I'm surprised that a schematic for it is so elusive.

It probably doesn't matter what you put there.
Use a plain wire, or when there is suspicion that it might have been a capacitor then use a small ceramic cap of 100pF..1nF.
You will not notice any difference in performance either way, but it could be there was a capacitor there to block DC.

Thank you for your input.

I will try a straight connection with a bit of wire.

You also need to check if the connector has come loose, I think it it rotating in its mounting hole which has destroyed the unidentified component.

After a 30-day public discussion and feedback period to gauge reader opinions in March of 2009:

http://groups.google.com/group/rec.radio.amateur.moderated/browse_thread/thread/d7d337db35f23326

the rec.radio.amateur.moderated Moderation Team has decided to consider amending its charter, and permit limited simultaneous crossposting to rec.radio.amateur.moderated and one other unmoderated amateur-radio-related discussion newsgroup. We are currently trying this on a temporary basis (90 days, through early July 2009), and adopt it permanently if successful.

Approved rec.radio.amateur.* newsgroups are those that are currently listed in the latest version of the "List of Big Eight Newsgroups" which is crossposted monthly to news.announce.newgroups, news.groups, and news.lists.misc.

Approved alt.radio.amateur.* and alt.ham-radio.* newsgroups are those that have been created consistent with the suggestions in "So You Want to Create an Alt Newsgroup" at:

  http://www.faqs.org/faqs/alt-creation-guide/

Approved regional hierarchy newsgroups are those that contain either "radio.amateur" or "ham-radio" in their names, including uk.radio.amateur and aus.radio.amateur.misc.

We will make every reasonable effort to keep our list of approved newsgroups up-to-date. In case we have overlooked any, and a submission is rejected in error as a result, the rejected submitter can E-mail us at our administrative contact address (in the signature at the bottom of this article, and the default Reply-To for the rejection message) requesting that it be added, and that the article be approved. We may still choose to reject articles crossposted to any alt.* newsgroup with an inappropriate name, including obscene language, embedded name-calling, or encouragement of unlawful conduct.

Please direct any comments, questions, or criticisms to rec-radio-amateur-moderated-request@panix.com.

I'm having a helluva time figuring out how to edit/mask one of my memory channels on my VX-7R.

The really odd thing is, I can edit or mask any other memory channel, except for this particular one!

I'm not using any memory groups, "special", nor one-touch memories. Just the basic bank of 499 (or whatever).

Steps I take to edit the memories:

* V/M toggle to VFO mode
* Select freq. & tone settings
* MON/F for .5 secs
* Dial to desired memory number
* MON/F

This works on any other memory channel (even existing ones), except #7. I can't mask it, either.
What is happening? How can I edit this memory channel?

Thanks.

Mike-

I think you have it. I found the service manual at mods.dk. It shows a two-circuit key jack with additional circuits switched when the key is plugged in. I didn't get the operator manual, but it probably has more information about keying.

When the TS-820 came out, it was a top-of-the-line rig, so it may very well have a built-in keyer. With only one jack, it would have to accommodate both a straight key and a paddle. I wonder if there is a menu choice that disables the second circuit?

Anyone parting out a Kenwood R-5000? I need a new antenuator knob.

Please don't tell me to:

1. Check the Yahoo group. I've asked there many times and no one ever is.

2. Order it from Kenwood Parts in the USA. Quite simply, I can't.

The same knob is used on a TS-440.

Thanks,

Geoff.

After a 30-day public discussion and feedback period to gauge reader opinions in March of 2009:

http://groups.google.com/group/rec.radio.amateur.moderated/browse_thread/thread/d7d337db35f23326

the rec.radio.amateur.moderated Moderation Team has decided to consider amending its charter, and permit limited simultaneous crossposting to rec.radio.amateur.moderated and one other unmoderated amateur-radio-related discussion newsgroup. We are currently trying this on a temporary basis (90 days, through early July 2009), and adopt it permanently if successful.

Approved rec.radio.amateur.* newsgroups are those that are currently listed in the latest version of the "List of Big Eight Newsgroups" which is crossposted monthly to news.announce.newgroups, news.groups, and news.lists.misc.

Approved alt.radio.amateur.* and alt.ham-radio.* newsgroups are those that have been created consistent with the suggestions in "So You Want to Create an Alt Newsgroup" at:

http://www.faqs.org/faqs/alt-creation-guide/

Approved regional hierarchy newsgroups are those that contain either "radio.amateur" or "ham-radio" in their names, including uk.radio.amateur and aus.radio.amateur.misc.

We will make every reasonable effort to keep our list of approved newsgroups up-to-date. In case we have overlooked any, and a submission is rejected in error as a result, the rejected submitter can E-mail us at our administrative contact address (in the signature at the bottom of this article, and the default Reply-To for the rejection message) requesting that it be added, and that the article be approved. We may still choose to reject articles crossposted to any alt.* newsgroup with an inappropriate name, including obscene language, embedded name-calling, or encouragement of unlawful conduct.

Please direct any comments, questions, or criticisms to rec-radio-amateur-moderated-request@panix.com.

A tempting offer, thanks. My estimate is that if I want to send it insured it would cost at least $100. USPS does not insure mail to Israel, so I would have to use FEDEX, DHL ETC.

That would raise the price to $300 plus about $75 in taxes. Getting an import permit for it is trivial, but may add another $35 in fees (before taxes) from the courrier service.

The other option would be to have a tourist bring it in their luggage.
At $200 it fits within the tax excemption for gifts.

That would not be a bad deal, but all I want is a knob. :-)

I just reinstalled my Icom back into my vehicle after it being out for several months, I was listening to 20 meters yesterday and tried to get into a few of the pileups that were going on. A second or two in keying up to ID my call, the radio shuts off. I also have developed what sounds like a ground hum on VHF.

For an antenna I am using a Yaesu ATAS-100 with a AM-COM controller. When tuning the antenna in, I get to very low SWR's on the meter, so I don't think that it is a high SWR that is causing it. I have checked all connections and they are tight, so any thing further I can check?

Thanks

You know, I've dealt with them for almost 20 years, bought radios from them when I lived in the US, and go to their web site often, but never thought about asking them.

Thanks.

Hi.

I just got a Yaesu FT-920, which is a _most_ interesting rig. It doesn't have the FM board. Does anyone here have one to sell or trade?

Good points. I've found the IC-706 to be bloody all sensitive to voltages under about 12.59999999V.

A friend of mine found the original "butt contact" fuse holder was the culprit. He accidently discovered the cause during one frustrating session when repositioning the power cable by clasping the fuse holder bodies (there are 2 of'em, IIRC). They were quite warm to the touch.

My installation involves direct, 10 ga. wires to the battery posts and I am using automotive, blade-style, in-line fuses. Even then, I sometimes need to remove the fuses, clean the blades, re-apply silicone grease around the body and reinsert them to get the problem to go away.

Even given all that, I cannot park and operate SSB for more than approx. 20 minutes before the other OP eventually reports terrible distortion on my transmission. I never operate FM -- I can imagine what problems that mode can inflict on this problem.

A pox on their house for rolling out a rig that works so poorly under such minor under voltages. It would not be my choice for a rig to rely upon in an emergency.

Don't know if you have the head remoted or not. If so, the instructions are very clear about grounding of the plug on the back of the control head, or something that effect.

Getting backi into amateur radio after finishing up raising kids and partially retiring from teaching. I dug out my old IC-28A 2 mtr transceiver but can't find the mike, an HM-14 with an 8-pin round connector. Anyone out there have one to sell? Thanks, Dutch, K0RLC

Kevin-

I have the same problem with an IC-7000. I first thought there might be RF getting into the rig causing the problem. I eventually found it is actually caused by low supply voltage, as others have noted. With the engine running, it usually works OK, but sometimes there is sufficient voltage drop in the wiring that it turns off even then.

What I have done is to install an MFJ-4416 Super Battery Booster. It is a DC-to-DC power inverter that produces a constant 13.8 Volts DC from a varying input voltage. With that turned on, I've never had the rig turn itself off. The booster is effectively out of the circuit when it is turned off, so I leave it off until the problem occurs.

Greeting All,

I'm in the process of programming my new Yaesu FT-8800 with the RT software. I'm looking for tricks or what works best for you as far as programming? I currently have both the left and right side programmed the same, but looking to see what the popular configuration might be.

Also, is there a way to copy the left program over to the right side without exporting and importing the delimited files? It seems that the check boxes don't really save once I export it.

Thanks! 73

Rodd / KC2URG

The rec.radio.info newsgroup, first established in 1993, has been recently revived by an active moderation team. We are currently seeking suitable information, FAQ, and bulletin articles from the entire rec.radio.* newsgroup hierarchy for simultaneous cross-posting to our newsgroup.

We are seeking a replacement maintainer for the following information bulletin formerly posted to rec.radio.amateur.* (and currently archived at http://www.faqs.org/faqs/radio/personal-intro/):

radio/personal-intro
Subject: Guide to the rec.radio Newsgroups
Maintainer: jeffreyh@Hawaii.Edu (Jeffrey Herman)
Last Posted: 9 Nov 2001 06:18:17 GMT
Posting-Frequency: 15th of each month

One significant omission, requiring immediate updates, for this article |
is that it does not mention newer amateur radio newsgroups created since |
it was written, including: |

rec.radio.amateur.antenna |
rec.radio.amateur.boatanchors |
rec.radio.amateur.dx |
rec.radio.amateur.equipment |
rec.radio.amateur.homebrew |
rec.radio.amateur.moderated |
rec.radio.amateur.space |

We are willing to provide any technical support necessary to get this article updated and automatically posted again at a regular interval. This would include establishing contact with the original maintainer for any necessary permissions. We would prefer to seek a new, dedicated maintainer at this time, rather than start auto-posting the original article ourselves.

For more information about our newsgroup, see:

Please direct any comments, questions, or criticisms to rec-radio-info-request@panix.com.

If this is the wrong group I'd appreciate a pointer to the right one!

I was wondering if it is possible to detect the presence of inactive cell phones/wifi devices by detecting radio signals they emit. I
all that much when not in use, right?

Would there be enough output to find them? Would it be strong enough to detect over a distance of say 100m? Could signals from multiple devices be distinguished? Would the equipment be very expensive. Would I get thrown in prison?

I am interested in triangulating and tracking the movement of phones through a small area as a potential postgrad project.

Thanks.

The cell phone providers already track the phones,  not sure that you would be doing anything new.

If inactive means 'switched off', then 'no'.

If switched 'on' they DO exchange info with their 'cell' from time to time.
If left stationary they will do so less, but if in motion they will do so more frequently.

> Would there be enough output to find them?
2 Watts (for a cellphone) is more than enough!

>  Would it be strong enough to detect over a distance of say 100m?
Yes.

> Could signals from multiple devices be distinguished?
That could be troublesome. I have only experience with analogue signals.

> Would the equipment be very expensive.
Analogue can be home-build

> Would I get thrown in prison?
Depends on your country. Not here ( in the Netherlands ).

The TS-820S came out in 1978. It did not have a built in keyer. Use a mono
1/4 " phone plug, it ought to work fine. I still have mine.

Nice TRF receiver on the cover.  Looks potentially lethal.

Just a thought, are you wanting the original microphone for authenticity, or do you just want a microphone to use the radio?

If the latter, then a possible alternative solution might be to take an existing microphone, and homebrew a suitable adaptor to be able to use it on your older Icom set. I posted a few notes on this a while back, although can't seem to put my finger on the post... but I do remember writing it, and posting it on this very newsgroup. Anyway... it'll take me longer to hunt it down than to re-write what I wrote the first time... ;-)

The simplest solution would be of course to track down a microphone that's compatible out-of-the-box... however if you can get hold of a microphone that uses the same connector, that could be modified to suit your Icom. Chances are, just a few wires need to be switched, and all will be well.

Failing that, if you can track down the connector needed, you can homebrew a solution utilising a standard electret-type microphone such as a computer headset or desk microphone, and a suitable switch (heck, even a morse key). Chances are your radio will be expecting a dynamic microphone input... to interface this with an electret microphone, you just need to tap off a voltage source (if your radio doesn't provide one through the socket, tap your radio's supply, or use a small battery) which you pass through a 2kOhm resistor -- this connects to the electret microphone capsule's positive terminal (tip on computer microphone 3.5mm connectors). From this node in the circuit, run an AC decoupling capacitor (100nF MKT polyester or ceramics do well) between this point and the microphone input on the radio. Ground connections are then just run from electret capsule to microphone ground on the radio. PTT is fairly straightforward too.

For EMC, it's also a good idea to put a capacitor across the terminals of the microphone, as close as possible to the electret capsule itself. Many good quality microphones will have a small SMD ceramic capacitor soldered to the back of the microphone. This will shunt any RF picked up by the microphone to ground. This is certainly not a requirement, and you could get away without.

I do this on my Yaesu FT-290R II, which is a similar vintage to the IC-28A. I have an original microphone for it (with DTMF) but for bicycle mobile use, I have a headset embedded in a motorcycle helmet (homebrewed from bits and pieces of broken headsets). The FT-290's microphone connector provides the following signals:

- Microphone signal
- Microphone shield
- Speaker output (doesn't disconnect internal speaker)
- PTT
- Channel Up button
- Channel Down button
- ~5V source
- 0V reference

So my connections are (please excuse the ASCII-art)

On my bicycle mobile station, the pushbutton is mounted on the handlebars... in a home station, one option is as I say, a straight morse key, a simple switch, even a foot switch. The above wiring I find gives good results and I get excellent signal reports -- unless I happen to be in tiger country. For a computer interface, I did the same as above, but instead swapping the electret capsule for a plug running straight to the computer's line output via an isolation transformer, and using a BC547B NPN transistor across the PTT lines -- connecting the base and emitter to RTS and 0V on a USB serial converter.

Anyway, that's a possible solution to your problem, and has the advantage that you save a few dollars buying the one microphone and just interfacing it to multiple radios, rather than buying multiple more expensive microphones.

Hi,

What is the best VNA for amateur work, and why?

I have recently made a generational leap from transmatches, grid dip meters, Smith Charts, and wire cutting to an awareness of VNAs (Vector Network Analyzer), e.g.,

+ http://www.members.shaw.ca/swstuff/vna.html
+ http://www.miniradiosolutions.com/

and many others.

I started looking at VNA gear - toys that combine TDRs, VSWR meters, Z and Q meters all in one tiny box and connect to your laptop for a host of other analyses plus Smith Charts !! And promise instant wisdom and nirvana...

Not having seen, let alone used, one I wonder...

So this is a new frontier for me. What are your opinions (admittedly a troll) on the "best" of class?

My research suggests:

+ Array Solutions AIM 4170 by W5BIG
+ the mRS miniVNA

The eham.net site is really very good. I copied its Analyzer page

http://www.eham.net/reviews/products/31 into a spreadsheet so that I can sort by cost, rating, number of reviews, etc.

But analysis is only so good in the absence of actual experience ... :-)

So what do you think?

What is the best VNA for amateur work, and why?

Kind regards, 73, Andy WA6VCT

Of course, it's worth nothing that this newsgroup, rec.radio.amateur.equipment is not a buy and sell newsgroup.  It's for the discussion of equipment related to amateur radio.

So the original post didn't belong here for that reason.

Further, since there is rec.radio.amateur.boatanchors, clearly there is an intent that older equipment be discussed over there.  It's not primarily a buy and sell newsgroup either, though they were wishy-washy when creating the newsgroup so buying and selling is actually allowed, though it's supposed to be a secondary use (ie if you're talking about older equipment, then some level of buying and selling related to the discussion fits, but it was never intended for carpetbaggers to suddenly appear to sell their stuff).  But, the boatanchors newsgroup would at least be read by an audience that would see the historical aspect of the equipment in the original post.

It may not be obvious to people who have not followed the newsgroup since the newsgroup name does suggest equipment discussions including perhaps buying and selling would be appropriate. If not, someone could have pointed it out politely instead of hurling insults at the poor fellow.

Well said, but not everybody knows how to find newsgroups. Who knows what news service or reader he's using, he may not have access to all groups. I don't think it was a google post or I would not have seen it. Unless the guy is a habitual offender who has received explanations like yours we can't assume he is flaunting protocol.

Your gentlemanly reply is a breath of fresh air. Thank you for posting this information. I hope it will help future readers and posters.

I didn't insult the seller. I insulted his collection of boatanchor test gear.

It looks as though someone cleaned out a shop back in 1964 or so and someone else recently found the stuff. The McMartin EBS receiver might be a decent AM radio.

Some people like old stuff. I like new stuff. I have an old National SW2 (I Think) receiver tucked away and when I locate it I will try to find a buyer at whatever is a fair price.

Sometimes one can find interest for such things in places other than EBAY.

I might even try to sell it here.

Hello all,

Just bought an old Mk1 FT-s 290R. All is working well (even the back light)! but when I switch from USB to LSB the background noise drops on receive and no output is obtained into a dummy load or any movement indicated on the rigs own meter?

I may delve in tonight and apply some switch cleaner just in case, any one experienced anything similar I wonder?

Any help gratefully appreciated .

Thanks

Paul - g0VHT

I'd start by checking the mode switch and LSB oscillator.

Paul-

I'm not familiar with the 290R. Sideband selection is often done by switching between local oscillator crystals. It may be a bad crystal, a dirty switch, or possibly a problem with a diode switching circuit.

If the USB and LSB crystals happen to be plug-in, you could try swapping them to see if the problem swaps or stays at the same switch position.

Not sure I'd really get too worried about it.

Maybe things are different in the UK but there is essentially zero activity on LSB on 2 meters over here in the States -- everyone uses upper sideband.

Thanks for your reply Fred. I plan taking 'the old lady' apart tonight and will work through some of your suggestions. Hopefully it won't be too difficult to trace the fault.

Many thanks

The only thing you need LSB for is working a mode-B satellite transponder.

I think the problem is located in or around the sideband oscillator (Q1013).
It could be the LSB sideband crystal (X01) or the circuitry that switches the crystals.
First check the "LSB +6.8v" line.  If it does not work, it would be the mode switch.  I would not apply any "switch cleaner" before checking this.

When this signal is OK, check if the diode is still ok.  I think the most likely failure is in the crystal X01.  That would probably not be worth the trouble to replace, except if you want satellite operation.

Hi Rob and all,

FYI - I am using the rig with a Toko HF-240 transverter hence my need for LSB!

Never mind, its now working! I opened the rig up earlier today, did some basic checks, nothing obvious - applied switch cleaner to the mode switch - no change, tapped the relevant crystals (gently), no change so I left things as they were and put the rig back in my car.

Funny thing was the Velcro holding the rig to the dashboard came loose and the rig fell 12 inches or so to the floor - low and behold no damage to the rig but LSB fired back into life! Not sure how long it will stay this way but it does give a clue to the problem in the first place.

Thanks for all your help guys, much appreciated.

I'm from Italy and I'm searching for some PR-2250 spare parts, in particular:

- A Symmetrical 1.4 MHz filter with 3.0 KHz bandwidth (just like the one employed in the "Module 3" - not 3D -).
- A complete "Module 7" (with the oven-controlled Reference Oscillator).

Any idea about the availability of the above parts?
Thank you!!!

Best 73,

Paolo

I just bought a used ts-820 which had been completely reconditioned and has all new tubes. It works great in SSB but when I insert the CW key and put the Mode sw in CW, I get a constant tone that none of the dials on the front seem to effect. When I remove the jack, the tone goes away. Any suggestions?

Have you looked at the key? Some have a lever that allows for closing the contacts on a continuous basis, such as when tuning up. See if there is, and that it's not closed.

Or, it may be a short at the plug.

Or it may be a 2-conductor plug on a radio which requires a 3-conductor plug. I know my Yaesu FT-857D, FT-897D, and FT-920 require 3-conductor plugs, and if I insert a 2-conductor plug, it will put the radio into transmit RIGHT THEN.

Check the manual and the plug type first. If the plug type is OK, then ohm out the plug. If it's not shorted and it's the right type, then something interesting is going on.

My FT=290 is slightly off frequency on TX, it is about 4Khz lower than the display frequency but the RX is spot on display frequency so I have to operate with the clarifier switched on to be able to resolve the other station. Antone know how I can adjust this??
Cheers

Is it OK on FM, but not on USB? And what about LSB and CW?

Is the SSB modulation still OK?

I've got a MkII here with a similar problem, although it's not as severe... about 600~800Hz off from the actual frequency.  I'm guessing it could be the age of the reference crystals having an impact (these are frequency synthesised rigs), but without ripping the thing apart, I'm not sure.

<1kHz isn't enough to bother me... just use the frequency display as a guide then tune around until you get the target station spot on.  4kHz on the other hand, would be quite irritating.

I have the original FT-290 (I presume that is what he refers to when writing Mk1, but I am not sure).

In this rig, the synthesizer is running at a constant frequency offset from the tx/rx frequency by the first IF. The transmitter operates by generating FM/SSB/CW at the first IF and mixing it with the synthesizer frequency.

As SSB is generated by modulating a crystal frequency using a balanced modulator and then feeding it through the IF filter, I think that if this crystal is off frequency there will be a severe effect on the modulation (as the filter passes the wrong part of the spectrum).

That is why I asked if modulation is affected. If it isn't, it is a bit unclear where the frequency difference between rx and tx can originate.

(of course, it is easy to explain a difference between actual rx AND tx frequency and the dial display)

It could well be that the MkII has a different method of operation.

Steve,
Have a look here, it took me 2 mins to find it using Google!

http://www.hampedia.net/alinco/dr435.php

Just look near the top of the page and click on the link it will download the programming software for the DR-435 in Winzip format, just extract and use!

I am assuming that your MkIII will be compatible with this software, but with a bit of research it won't be hard to find out.

Here is another link:

For DJ-196/296/496/596/C7 handhelds and DR-135/235/435/620/635 mobiles there is a 3rd party supplier in the USA that sells software under Alinco's authority. That 3rd party supplier's website is at http://www.cbtinc.net/radio/alinco .

After a 30-day public discussion and feedback period to gauge reader opinions in March of 2009:

http://groups.google.com/group/rec.radio.amateur.moderated/browse_thread/thread/d7d337db35f23326

the rec.radio.amateur.moderated Moderation Team has decided to consider amending its charter, and permit limited simultaneous crossposting to rec.radio.amateur.moderated and one other unmoderated amateur-radio-related discussion newsgroup. We are currently trying this on a temporary basis (90 days, through early July 2009), and adopt it permanently if successful.

Approved rec.radio.amateur.* newsgroups are those that are currently listed in the latest version of the "List of Big Eight Newsgroups" which is crossposted monthly to news.announce.newgroups, news.groups, and news.lists.misc.

Approved alt.radio.amateur.* and alt.ham-radio.* newsgroups are those that have been created consistent with the suggestions in "So You Want to Create an Alt Newsgroup" at:

http://www.faqs.org/faqs/alt-creation-guide/

Approved regional hierarchy newsgroups are those that contain either "radio.amateur" or "ham-radio" in their names, including uk.radio.amateur and aus.radio.amateur.misc.

We will make every reasonable effort to keep our list of approved newsgroups up-to-date. In case we have overlooked any, and a submission is rejected in error as a result, the rejected submitter can E-mail us at our administrative contact address (in the signature at the bottom of this article, and the default Reply-To for the rejection message) requesting that it be added, and that the article be approved. We may still choose to reject articles crossposted to any alt.* newsgroup with an inappropriate name, including obscene language, embedded name-calling, or encouragement of unlawful conduct.

Please direct any comments, questions, or criticisms to rec-radio-amateur-moderated-request@panix.com.

Trash talk will never succeed when you see how handsome this sneaker looks. The Nike Hyperdunk Low =96 Trash Talk sneaker does not deserve its name because it looks just the opposite.
The name given to the Nike Hyperdunk Low =96 Trash Talk sneaker is however part and parcel of the basketball industry as trash talk usually eggs on basketball players to do their best. As a result, trash talk can either bring out the best in the players or reduce them to mere losers.
The Nike Hyperdunk Low =96 Trash Talk sneaker comes in a unique diamond-pattern black upper which look=85.

No problem, would like to trade but costs of shipping to Sweden from Canada are overwhelming. Maybe someone from Europe would like to trade?

Yes it's a MK1
Seems fine on FM
Haven't tried on CW (no-one seems to be using thant mode on 2m)
Similarly have only worked other stations on USB so not sure about LSB

Ok, next time you work someone in USB ask him for a test what happens when using LSB and maybe CW.
(you would have to connect a key or at least a wire using a 3.5mm jack)

This is an original FT-290 ie the one with the built in battery pack.
Everything else on the radio seems to check out OK except a discrepancy between TX & RX frequency on SSB - nothing noticable on FM & don't use CW. Just hoping there is a simple adjustment to net the TX/RX frequencies (& hopefully get these to correspond to the indicated frequency on the display)

The rec.radio.info newsgroup, first established in 1993, has been recently revived by an active moderation team. We are currently seeking suitable information, FAQ, and bulletin articles from the entire rec.radio.* newsgroup hierarchy for simultaneous cross-posting to our newsgroup.

We are seeking a replacement maintainer for the following information bulletin formerly posted to rec.radio.amateur.* (and currently archived at http://www.faqs.org/faqs/radio/personal-intro/):

 radio/personal-intro

One significant omission, requiring immediate updates, for this article |
is that it does not mention newer amateur radio newsgroups created since |
it was written, including: |

 rec.radio.amateur.antenna |
 rec.radio.amateur.boatanchors |
 rec.radio.amateur.dx |
 rec.radio.amateur.equipment |
 rec.radio.amateur.homebrew |
 rec.radio.amateur.moderated |
 rec.radio.amateur.space |

We are willing to provide any technical support necessary to get this article updated and automatically posted again at a regular interval. This would include establishing contact with the original maintainer for any necessary permissions. We would prefer to seek a new, dedicated maintainer at this time, rather than start auto-posting the original article ourselves.
